<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Confirmation bias</th>
<th>Simplifying the picture</th>
<th>Attachment to own point of view</th>
<th>Conformism/ generalized trust</th>
<th>Emotional reasoning</th>
<th>Overconfidence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Confirmation bias</td>
<td>Overgeneralization</td>
<td>Unable to broaden one’s perspective</td>
<td>Sacralising IT as a tool of power</td>
<td>Generalisation of expertise</td>
<td>If the story is good, it is easily believed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jumping to conclusions (without seeing the whole picture)</td>
<td>Faulty “hard assumptions” – definitive statements about things that are not definite</td>
<td>Black/white thinking</td>
<td>Taboo about asking questions to clarify concepts.</td>
<td>People don’t question authority / group opinion even if they actually believe something else</td>
<td>Difficulty to address problem / negative aspects of situation honestly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-fullfilling prophecy / self-predicting bias</td>
<td>“Ceteris paribus doesn’t exist in reality” (making decisions on the assumption that important factors will remain constant in the long term, which never happens)</td>
<td>Lack of imagination due to prejudice (stereotyping)</td>
<td>Conflicting interests</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- Confirmation bias
- Simplifying the picture
- Attachment to own point of view
- Conformism/ generalized trust
- Emotional reasoning
- Overconfidence

- Confirmation bias
- Overgeneralization
- Unable to broaden one’s perspective
- Sacralising IT as a tool of power
- Generalisation of expertise
- If the story is good, it is easily believed
- Sales create illusions; overdelivering

- Jumping to conclusions (without seeing the whole picture)
- Faulty “hard assumptions” – definitive statements about things that are not definite
- Black/white thinking
- Taboo about asking questions to clarify concepts.
- People don’t question authority / group opinion even if they actually believe something else
- Difficulty to address problem / negative aspects of situation honestly

- Self-fullfilling prophecy / self-predicting bias
- “Ceteris paribus doesn’t exist in reality” (making decisions on the assumption that important factors will remain constant in the long term, which never happens)
- Lack of imagination due to prejudice (stereotyping)
- Conflicting interests

- We tend to believe our own thoughts